APPROACH

I work in long arcs, with few clients, on things meant to last. The studio prefers fewer decisions, made carefully, over many made quickly.

Most engagements run between six weeks and six months. I partner with writers, photographers, and developers I've worked with for years.

Recent collaborations include independent publishers, small roasters, museums, and a handful of founders building things worth the care.

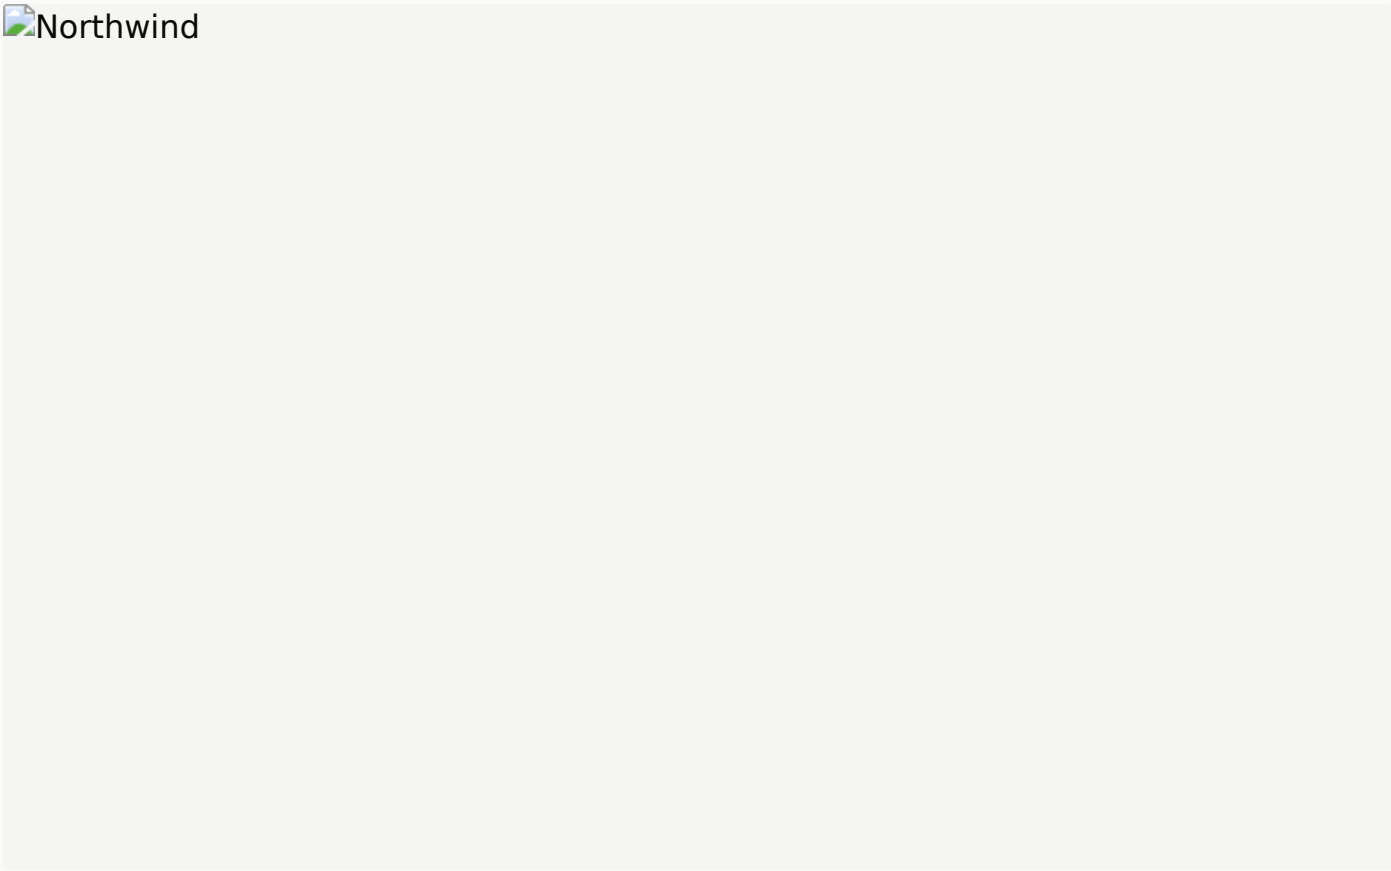
BRAND IDENTITY · 2026

Northwind

A quiet identity for a specialty coffee roaster

CLIENT	Northwind Coffee Co.
ROLE	Art Direction, Identity, Packaging
YEAR	2026



BRIEF

A visual system built around the ritual of the first cup — restrained typography, warm paper stocks, and a monogram that reads equally well at 12pt and on a shopfront.

Fig. 01 — Bag system — four origins, one grammar.

APPROACH

We stripped the category of its usual noise. No badges, no medals, no woodcut illustrations. Instead, a single serif wordmark carries the brand — supported by a strict grid of origin, process, and tasting notes.

ABOUT — AN INDEPENDENT PRACTICE

I design quiet, deliberate things — identities, books, posters, and the occasional website — for clients who value care over volume.

BIOGRAPHY

Jean Theilborie is a designer and art director based between Lisbon and Paris. The studio was founded in 2018 after five years at a larger agency, and has since worked with publishers, museums, restaurants, and small independent brands.

Trained as an illustrator before turning fully to design, Jean treats every project as a problem of language first — what is this thing, how does it speak, and who is it speaking to. Typography and restraint follow from there.

Available for a small number of projects each year. Usually identity, editorial, or print. Occasionally something that does not fit a category at all.
